Re: Electronic Bidding for future issues

Dear Dennis:

Public Financial Management, Inc. ("PFM") recommends that Jasper County, Iowa (the "Issuer") use the PARITY® electronic bidding system as one element of the process for receiving bids on its competitively-sold bond issues. PARITY® is a product of i-Deal LLC and is one of the systems in use for the electronic submission of bids. It has become the dominant system in use today. There is no cost to the Issuer to accept bids electronically via PARITY®, this product is supported by the use of underwriters and investment bankers who are charged a fee for the use of other products that are provided by i-Deal LLC in connection with the preparation of their bids.

Under current non-electronic methods of bid submission underwriting syndicates transmit or deliver their bids in written form either by personal delivery, fax, or via telephone transmission. Bids are manually recorded and placed in envelopes which are then sealed and presented to the governing body. Under this system several opportunities for delay, blocked transmission due to busy signals, and human error exist throughout the process.

Under the PARITY® system of electronic bid submission bidding underwriters using Bidcomp (another i-Deal product) calculate their bids using the Bidcomp software and submit it over private leased lines (not over the internet) via the Parity system. When the bid deadline is reached, the Issuer and the financial advisor can immediately view the submitted bids using an internet-based Parity interface on a computer at the office of the Issuer.

There are several advantages to this system which will improve the bidding process by making it more efficient, timely and error-free. Among these advantages are the following:

1. Bidcomp alerts users to any violation of bid parameters such as minimum-bid and interest-rate constraints.
2. By eliminating middlemen and handwritten bids, the occurrence of transcription errors is reduced and bids can be submitted more quickly. This also allows underwriters to make last-minute changes to their bids.
3. All risk of error in bid submission is on the bidder, and this eliminates human error that can occur at the hands of Issuer board staff or its financial consultant when manual recording of bids is occurring.
4. Time deadlines are strictly observed. PARITY® and Bidcomp both contain a clock displaying local time and a countdown clock for use in the final minutes before the sale. Clocks are synchronized off a single i-Deal server to guarantee that they display the same time. Starting at five minutes before the time of the sale, the countdown clock counts down the remaining minutes and seconds to the time of the sale. When the Bidcomp countdown clock displays 00:00:00 a bidding underwriter may no longer submit a bid.

When the PARITY® countdown clock displays 00:00:00, the details of bids submitted may be accessed by the financial advisor or the Issuer.

Because PARITY® bid submission is virtually instantaneous, a single timestamp is associated to each bid when it is submitted through PARITY®. This timestamp represents the time that the bid is accessible by the financial advisor or the Issuer. This timestamp is displayed to bidding underwriters when they submit their bids, and to the financial advisor and the Issuer on PARITY'S Bid Results Screen and Bid Form.

5. The system provides immediate access to all bid information. When the PARITY® countdown clock displays 00:00:00, clicking on the Results Button on PARITY's Bid Screen will result in the display of submitted bids in ranked order. Clicking on a bidder's name from the Bid Results Screen will provide access to the bid form for that bid for viewing, printing or downloading.
6. The linking of the bid-calculation system to the bid-submission system and the capability of making last-minute changes has the effect of encouraging underwriters to bid where they might not otherwise choose to bid.

Although the PARITY® system is becoming more and more widely-used, it is not used by all underwriters so the submission of bids by traditional methods is also permitted so as not to exclude any potential bidders.

The system is structured to maximize security. Bidding underwriters using Bidcomp to submit bids to PARITY® connect to Bidcomp and i-Deal's New Issue database over private leased lines or dial-up connections. PARITY® bids are never submitted over the Internet. The financial advisor and the Issuer use an Internet-based PARITY® interface to access the TFMG New Issue database to monitor the submission of PARITY® bids and to view the actual bids. The financial advisor and the Issuer may not view bid details until after the time of the sale.

No external databases or copies of i-Deal data are created. The i-Deal databases are protected from the Internet by dual FireWall-1 gateways. These Firewalls provide comprehensive network control by implementing an advanced filtering technology which inspects each network packet and promptly blocks all unwanted communication attempts.

Access to databases is limited to requests originating from our Web server. Each customer is authorized to "log-in" to the Web server using an individually assigned user name and password. Each i-Deal subscriber agreement stipulates that users may not share passwords. Only authorized users are provided access to the back-end data. Also, i-Deal has implemented Netscape's Commerce Server as its Web interface including Netscape's advanced security features. Communications are based on a Secure Sockets Layer (SSL) protocol, which provides:

- Server authentication, allowing any SSL-compatible client to verify the identity of the server using a certificate and digital signature
- Data encryption, ensuring the privacy of client-server communications by encrypting the data stream between the two entities; and
- Data integrity, verifying that the contents of a message arrive at their destination in the same form as they were sent.

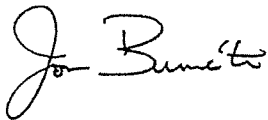

SSL employs public key cryptographic technology from RSA data security, an established leader in computer data security.

PARITY® is owned by i-Deal LLC which was organized by Merrill Lynch, Microsoft, Citigroup (formerly Salomon Smith Barney), and Thomson Financial. These four firms have seats on i-Deal's Board of Directors, but do not have administrative access to the internal operating data of i-Deal's customers. One of the essential services that i-Deal provides as a non-broker-dealer vendor is integrity of data. The information in i-Deal's systems belongs to the creators of that data not i-Deal. i-Deal is contractually committed not to share this data with any other broker dealer or other party without the express authorization of the creator of the data. These policies and procedures apply to all of i-Deal's products including Bidcomp/Parity. There has been no evidence or credible suggestion that Merrill Lynch or Citigroup by virtue of their ownership interest in i-Deal have a competitive advantage over other users of the PARITY® system.

In summary, PFM believes that the PARITY® bidding system is secure, efficient, promotes the maximum number of bids on a particular sale and is a positive step forward in the use of technology to enhance the sale of municipal securities. It is widely used by underwriters and financial advisors throughout the country. We have used it extensively and recommend it for an entity like the Issuer for future issues because of its excellent credit-quality. The Issuer's future issues will attract the type of bidders who are most likely to use the PARITY® system.

Sincerely,

PUBLIC FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT, INC.
